Element

Tokujin Yoshioka, 2013

The Element project unfolds into a family of furnishings that applies the same sculptural vision to both coffee tables and consoles. The exploration of form, inspired by the structure of crystals and the spontaneous beauty of nature, is reinterpreted across different scales and functions while maintaining a coherent and distinctive language. Each piece preserves the central core of the collection: an inclined volume that serves as a support, evoking minerals and quartz, and imparting dynamism and visual tension.
